

Feri's Electrolysis

WHAT is ELECTROLYSIS

Electrolysis is the process of removing unwanted hair permanently by coagulating the root of hair called papilla. This is done by applying heat through a needle-like wire called a probe, which is inserted into a natural opening of the hair follicle to destroy the bottom one third of the follicle. This procedure causes gradual cellular destruction impairing the ability of the follicle to produce a hair.

Hair Follicle

146 N Eagle Rd., Havertown, PA 19083
Phone: 610.446.3535
Email: electrolysiscity@yahoo.com